

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Understand actions, events, and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Who are your favorite relatives in your extended family?
- Why do you enjoy them?
- What stories have they told you about themselves?

Can Do Statements

- I can say what happened, had been happening or what had happened.
- I can express an unfulfilled action or wish in the past.
- I can refer to or report a past action, talk about an unreal past situation, or express an action in progress in the past.

Let's Explore!

He only pretended to be listening.

* When you "pretend" to do something, you look like you are doing it, but really, you are not.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Bernard had continued to tell Jerry fascinating exploits about his life. He described how he'd been traveling through Europe, earning money as a model. He admitted to have been having an affair with the French prime minister's niece – and how he would have liked to have married her.

He told Jerry how he'd begun working as a journalist in London and had grown to be one of the most popular war correspondents in Britain. Jerry gained respect for Bernard. He wondered what it was like to have become a famous journalist! Bernard had also told Jerry about the books he had written. To his amazement, they had even made a movie out of one.

One evening, Jerry had been sitting waiting for the genial Bernard to come to dinner. If you were to have asked anyone they would have said that he was never late. Jerry had begun to worry for the senior. He'd called Bernard's home, but no one appeared to have been answering.

Jerry had Bernard's address, but he had never been to his place. When Jerry drove up to the house, he was more than a little surprised. It was a small, dark street wedged into a poor area. The house itself looked to have seen better days.

"What about all the money he made from being a journalist?" Jerry wondered. "Bernard seemed to have been stretching the truth!"

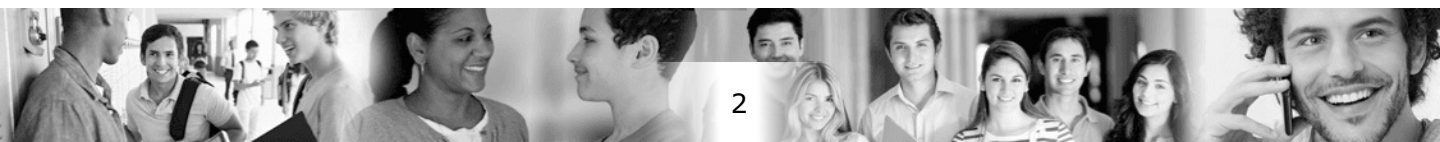

"Bernard?" he called out.

"Over here ..." a faint voice cried out.

Jerry followed the voice to the back door. Bernard had been lying there next to a stepladder. He appeared to have been trying to fix a light.

"Thank goodness you came!" Bernard said. Jerry believed him to have been grateful, but also thought him to be extremely embarrassed. Bernard seemed to have been telling rather tall tales!

Jerry had taken Bernard to the hospital and assured him that he was not angry. That he had been enjoying the stories too much to complain. The stories had been exciting! Maybe, he ventured, they could write a book together ...

Let's Practice!

He had high hopes*!

*To have "high hopes" means to have expectations for something great!

Instructions: Draw a line to match the sentences in Column A and Column B. When you complete the sentences, read the sentences aloud with your partner. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

COLUMN A

1. He described how he'd been traveling through Europe,
2. He told Jerry how he'd begun working as a journalist in London and
3. Jerry had Bernard's address,
4. When Jerry drove up to the house,
5. Bernard had been lying there next to a stepladder,

COLUMN B

- a. but he had never been to this place.
- b. hoping to earn money as a model.
- c. where he'd been trying to fix a light.
- d. it wasn't like he had expected.
- e. had hoped to become a war correspondent in Britain.

Let's Practice!

What had happened to Bernard?

Instructions: Choose the correct option to complete each sentence.

1. Bernard _____ to tell Jerry about fascinating exploits in his life.
a. has continued b. have continued c. had continued
2. He described _____ through Europe.
a. how he'd been traveling b. how he'll been traveling c. how he's been travel
3. Jerry _____ Bernard to the hospital and _____ that he was not angry.
a. had taken/ assured him b. has taken/ assures him c. takes/ assured him
4. He _____ the stories too much to complain.
a. have been enjoying b. had been enjoying c. 's enjoyed
5. The stories _____!
a. are being exciting b. has been exciting c. had been exciting

Extension Activity

Write a tall tale you heard from a distant relative.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Choose a picture of an interesting-looking person from a magazine or online.
- Imagine this is a distant relative of yours and recount stories they have told you about their life.
- Make it as outlandish as you like using actions in the past and actions that were continuing in the past.
- Read your story to a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I recount stories a fictitious distant relative told me.

☐ ☐

I talk about the past in a variety of ways.

☐ ☐

I share my story with a partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to wedge (verb): to force into a narrow space
e.g. It was on a small, dark street wedged into a poor area.
- senior (noun): an elderly person
e.g. Jerry had begun to worry for the senior.
- to gain respect for (verb): to feel admiration for someone who you previously did not admire e.g. Jerry gained respect for Bernard.
- exploit (noun): a brave, interesting, or unusual act
e.g. Bernard had continued to tell Jerry about fascinating exploits in his life.
- genial (adjective): friendly and cheerful
e.g. Jerry had been sitting waiting for the genial Bernard to come to dinner.

Learning Points

The Past Perfect and Past Perfect Continuous Tenses

You use both the Past Perfect and Past Perfect Continuous tenses to talk about past actions that happened before another past action. What are the differences between them?

Refer to the chart for a summary of the differences between the Past Perfect and Past Perfect Continuous tenses.

Tense	Meaning/Use	Example
Past Perfect (had + past participle)	to indicate that a completed action happened earlier than something else	By the time I was 16, my mother had taught me how to drive a car.
Past Perfect Continuous (had + been + verb -ing)	to indicate the action was not completed to emphasize the duration or activity of an action to create a kind of background for the rest of the sentence	Jeff had been surfing the internet for about fifteen minutes when he suddenly noticed it was raining outside.

Examples:

- Bernard had continued to tell Jerry about fascinating exploits in his life.
- He described how he'd been traveling through Europe, earning money as a model.
- He told Jerry how he'd begun working as a journalist in London and had grown to be one of the most popular war correspondents in Britain.
- Jerry had Bernard's address, but he had never been to his place.
- When Jerry drove up to the house, he was more than a little surprised.
- Bernard had been lying there next to a stepladder.
- Jerry had taken Bernard to the hospital and assured him that he was not angry.
- He had been enjoying the stories too much to complain.
- The stories had been exciting!

Learning Points

Perfect Infinitives and Perfect Continuous Infinitive - Review

You use Perfect Infinitives in the same way as you use other Perfect tenses (to talk about the past). You can use them to talk about unreal situations in the past.

The Perfect Infinitive refers to a time before the preceding verb.

You use the Perfect Infinitive in the result clause of the third conditional.

You use the modals could have, might have, ought to have, should have, would have and needn't have + the past participle to talk about the unreal past.

If the teacher had known about the strike, she would probably have avoided going to work.

The Perfect Continuous Infinitive refers to a time before that of the preceding verb and expresses an action in progress or happening over a period of time.

You use the Perfect Infinitive Continuous after modal verbs and after appear and seem, but it can also be used after happen, pretend and the passive of believe, know, report, say, understand.

You shouldn't have been listening to the conversation.

He appears to have been working for some time.

They pretended to have been working.

Examples:

- He would have liked to have married her.
- He wondered what it was like to have become a famous journalist!
- If you were to have asked anyone, they would have said he was never late.
- The house itself looked to have seen better days.
- Jerry believed him to have been grateful, but also thought him to be extremely embarrassed.
- He admitted to have been having an affair with the French prime minister's niece.
- No one appeared to have been answering.
- Bernard seemed to have been stretching the truth!
- Bernard seemed to have been telling rather tall tales!

